- Noncognitivism
- Error Theory

Cognitivist Skepticism -The Error Theory

Two Kinds of Metaethical Skepticism

Non-cognitivism:

- moral language is not descriptive of the mind-independent objective world — it is not true or false
- 2 moral language expresses or describes mental states or emotions

Problems with Noncognitivism

- 1 NC has problems accounting for the seeming authority of ethical claims
 - ethical claims present themselves as categorical—as independent of the judging subject's desires or interests
- 2 NC has problems accounting for the significance of the ethical in our lives
 - the possibility that there are no objective values seems to threaten the meaning or purpose of life in a way that it shouldn't if ethical claims didn't purport to be objective

Two Kinds of Metaethical Skepticism

Error Theory:

- Metaphysical claim: there are no objective moral facts or properties
- 2 Semantic claim: Moral discourse makes descriptive claims, but is systematically and uniformly false

Two Arguments for the Error Theory

- 1 The Argument from Disagreement
- 2 The Argument from 'Queerness'

Cognitivist Skepticism — The Error Theory

The Argument from Disagreement

- 1 The is an enormous amount of variation in moral views, which leads to disagreement concerning what to do/value
- 2 Moral disagreement is intractable in a way that other kinds of disagreement are not
- 3 ... The best explanation of the intractability of moral disagreement is that there is no objective fact of the matter concerning what to do/value

Explanation of Disagreement

- Mackie's Reply: Disagreement about moral codes seems to reflect people's adherence to and participation in different ways of life not the other way around
 - Monogamy vs. Polygamy
 - does one culture have better access to moral facts regarding marriage or do their views on marital facts simply reflect the particular development of that institution in their culture?

Other Alternatives — Less Disagreement?

- Deny premise (1) the extent of moral disagreement is exaggerated
 - Differences in customs do not mean differences about values
 - Hinduism & veneration of cows vs. Catholicism and veneration of the Virgin Mary
 - Both religions are venerating similar values (e.g. the caretaker/maternal figure) but in very different forms leading to superficial behavioral differences (e.g. vegetarianism)

Theory

Other Alternatives — Intractability

- Deny premise (2) moral disagreement is no more/less intractable than other forms of disagreement
 - ullet The intractability premise assumes that realism ullet the resolvability of disputes
 - But the possibility of unresolvable disputes occurs in supposedly 'realist' domains as well
 - fundamental disputes in physics may not be resolvable, even in principle (e.g. which string theory is correct)

Metaethics & Skepticism

Other Alternatives — Intractability

- one or more of the interlocutors may be systematically and irredeemably mistaken
 - it is possible to have coherent but nevertheless totally mistaken beliefs

Metaethics & Skepticism

Other Alternatives — Intractability

- Some moral disputes may have no uniquely correct answers
 - moral ties
 - incommensurable values
 - it ought to be possible in principle to show interlocutors who are not systematically mistaken that their dispute has no unique resolution

Summary: Against Mackie on Disagreement

- Reject premise (1)
 - the extent of moral disagreement is exaggerated
- Reject premise (2)
 - Moral disagreement is no more/less intractable than other forms of disagreement
 - One or more of the interlocutors may be systematically and irredeemably mistaken
 - Some moral disputes may have no uniquely correct answers
